Community engagement -

The role of systematic review teams in improving care: a qualitative study of stakeholders' views. Systematic reviews play a major role in informing decision-making by synthesising evidence and enhancing knowledge. It is recognised that involving research partners in the conduct of systematic reviews has many benefits. However, it is not clear whether this is achieved through only one type of stakeholder engagement. To identify the experiences of stakeholders in being engaged in systematic reviews by examining how teams of researchers, knowledge users and people affected by the review interact in the process of conducting systematic reviews and making decisions about their findings. A qualitative, exploratory study was undertaken using semi-structured interviews machines - Run Command Prompt or DOS batch files - Use VB scripts "We don't have any more time." "We don't even have time to take a break." "Remember the rule of three, okay?" "We don't get three, we don't get any of us out of here." "We will get three." "Trust me." "No, we won't." "Not on our own, we won't." "You wanted to know what I'm capable of, right?" "This is what I'm capable of." "Are you ready?" "Three."

"Good call." "Go." "Go!" "I got you, I got you." "You're okay." "All right." "Okay." "Okay." "Set them free." "I know why you're here." "Archer's not the target." "At least not yet." "You're supposed to be leaving." "Yeah, I'm supposed to leave with my friends." "But you're the one who gave them the time." "I'll take that as a blessing." "Oh, you'll like this." "When the time's right, I'll follow you, and I'll finish the job." "So you better get out of here while the getting is good."

"It's bad luck to see the bride or the groom before the wedding."
"Thanks, old man." "And if you're going to be a father, you'll need to make sure that the mother knows that she's carrying a son and not a daughter." "Steroids are good for a man's, but you're gonna need a little help for a woman's." "You understand what I'm saying?" "I think so."

---

"It's just that she's, you know..."
"Hey, hey, hey." "Hey." "You can't let her just walk out of there alone." "That's kidnapping." "No, no, no." "It'll be okay." "She'll be okay." "You better go find her." "I'm gonna take a little break." "Excuse me?" "I'm not that good of a singer, I'll just kill the music and go." "Okay." "I was thinking that we should elope tomorrow."
"You're crazy." "Hear that
