In February 2014, a three-year-old boy ingested a packet of instant coffee through a straw while feeding. His mother, who is in a relationship with the boy's father, was quoted in the Edmonton Journal as saying her son suffered symptoms such as diarrhea and an upset stomach. The child's grandmother also said she noticed that the boy, who she described as "very normal, healthy and very active" before the incident, was having trouble concentrating at school and had problems sleeping at night. The boy's mother, who spoke under a pseudonym, told Postmedia News, "I feel like I've lost my baby, but then I think of all the others and I'm OK with it. I had to watch a small child suffer." She said at the time of the incident, she was using unscented coffee because she thought a baby's lungs would absorb the scent. She gave the child the coffee through a straw in a pan of boiling water because her partner was in his room watching television. Experts testified in the hearing that the child's problems were caused by ingesting caffeine. The mother had appealed the board's ruling in June, but at Wednesday's hearing the Alberta Court of Queen's Bench dismissed her appeal. In a written ruling, Justice Sheila Weatherill wrote the mother raised "no reasonable grounds" to overturn the decision of the Alberta Review Board on Admissions and Protection. "The appellate court considered whether the board's ruling was reasonable. In my view, the appellate court considered the matter thoroughly and reached the correct result," Weatherill said. But the mother can still appeal the court's ruling to the Supreme Court of Canada.Category: Relationships I have been writing a number of posts on this blog about Why Matrimony Matters. Clearly, it matters for the Mother on average. It also matters for the Daughter in her twenties and earlier, in a non- 3a67dffeec

I don't have much experience in software design, but I have to say that the clock I downloaded from the website has an obscure display. I'd love to change the background color of the clock, and the day/month/year is hard to read. This application looks like a best case scenario, while yours needs tweaking. Also, I'm not sure what this icon means ("Clock (Skin-selected)" Should I change this? I'd hate to have a negative comment, but this program is not for me. Too ugly, too bad and too complicated. If you want a clock look like yours, I think you should do some small modifications. Suggestion by Modest Windows User on 2007-12-11 Rating: Now, you can say that I'm back...
