PDF Download HardcoverThe Miami Heat's overwhelming response to the first of their three-round NBA draft picks suggests that they'll be happy with whoever they chose. But, if James Ennis falls to the 20th pick of the second round, it would be a disappointing enough development to make Bill Raftery the happiest in the Orange and Blue. Raftery's Barstool Sports, the popular sports-centric website, polled 30 experts to project what the draft would look like. And 16 of the 30 scouts and former players predicted that the Boston Celtics would select Ennis, No. 20 overall, with Ennis considered the top small forward. Ennis averaged 15.7 points and 3.9 rebounds last season at Stanford. He finished second in the Pac-12 Conference in field goal percentage, hitting 58.6 percent. Ennis's recruitment began to pick up steam in the offseason. Oklahoma City Thunder forward Thabo Sefolosha, Chicago Bulls small forward Jimmy Butler and New Orleans Pelicans forward Anthony Davis were all considered finalists in August's Player Combine, and Ennis was the leading small forward in Nike Hoop Summit workouts. "He's a good player," Raftery said. "I'm surprised that the Heat didn't take him in the first round. He's the best forward in this draft." The Heat are planning to have a tough decision to make because they have five players in the 2014 draft. They also have an open roster spot if they wish to sign another player. They already have three rookies as part of their roster. Miami has the 20th pick and, according to the mock draft, the Houston Rockets and Chicago Bulls have the 21st pick. Houston used its No. 13 selection on shooting guard Jonathan Simmons from Illinois-Chicago. In the third round, the Heat will have picks No. 43, No. 50 and the rights to swap picks No. 50 and No. 43 with Chicago, which has the No. 42 selection. r - 0 . S o l v e h

I know this all too well. If you are newly pregnant and have had a difficult birth experience and you are in the process of healing, you may also be suffering from post-partum depression. I survived my pregnancy and my post-partum days as best I could. I knew something was wrong but I just did not know what it was. I also did not realize it was post-partum depression. Some who suffer from this are aware of their condition. It is estimated to affect ten percent of women and result in postpartum depression. I am not a mother and my daughter is now a teen. I still wonder when I will know her. I am also a constant caretaker. I am finding it difficult to let the baby cry herself to sleep. I have a 15 week old child and a 4 year old. I am sure there will come a day when I will stop as a caregiver for my children but I find myself thinking that day will never come. My mothering life has been easy
